Preface

The Fifth Economic Census (EC-2005) was conducted in 2005.The results of this census containing the figures relating to number of establishments and their employment, cross-classified according to location, major activity groups, type, etc., have already been brought out. This "Directory of Establishments" is being published for the first time in India in electronic form as Volume-II of EC-2005. It provides a comprehensive list of all establishments employing 10 or more workers according to workers size-class and NIC codes as per various economic activities in which they are engaged, excluding those engaged in crop production and plantation, both in the organised and unorganised sectors of the Indian economy. This is intended to serve as a "sampling frame" for designing sample surveys for detailed study of specific aspects of the economy including the follow-up surveys on unorganised sector to be conducted by the National Sample Survey Organization (NSSO).

Historically speaking, the main objective behind the launching of the Economic Census has been to generate a frame of establishments for designing detailed follow-up surveys. This has been achieved this time. Since the total number of establishments covered under the Economic Censuses runs into millions (it is about 42 million as per EC-2005), it was felt necessary to prepare a "Directory of Establishments" employing 10 and more workers, which will form the basis of "Business Register" for the country. For this a separate Schedule, Address Slip, was canvassed during EC-2005. To improve the quality of data and to avoid possible errors in transcription, including NIC category, Intelligent Character Recognition (ICR) technology was used for scanning the data. The scanned images were scrutinized and errors were corrected by the state level officers to the extent possible. Due to mechanical problem some images could not be recovered and, as such, the total size may not tally with the exact size. Moreover, due to image based processing some words in the addresses might not have come in a very user-friendly way. This being the first attempt, such problems could not be avoided.

It is hoped that this Directory will meet the requirements of large users including planners, policy makers, researchers and survey organizations. Suggestions for improvements are welcome.
